

TUM Football Analytics Hackathon 2026

- January 12-17, 2026, TUM Campus Olympic Parc, Munich

- 60 TUM master & PhD students from computer science / data science / sport science
- 8 groups will work competitively on football analytics challenges
- Spatiotemporal player and ball data of professional matches
- Evaluation by panel including experts from science, professional football and sports industry
- Hackathon party included
- Representatives of best 3 groups are invited to SPORTSINNOVATION in Düsseldorf on March 4 for the final

- Event will run as TUM “Project Week” (5 ECTS)
- Registration via TUM-Online (MHP0000401) or per mail until November 15, 2025

Supported by:

